Kane County State's Attorney Jamie Mosser Elected President of Illinois State's Attorneys Association

ST. CHARLES, IL – Kane County State's Attorney Jamie L. Mosser was sworn in last week as president of the Illinois State's Attorneys Association (ISAA) at the Association's winter conference in Oak Brook. Taking over from outgoing president Jodi Hoos of Peoria County, the inauguration ceremony marked the beginning of Mosser's leadership of the organization that champions the interest of Illinois prosecutors.

The ISAA is a bipartisan organization comprising all 102 elected State's Attorneys in Illinois. Its purpose is to promote the orderly administration of justice and the enforcement of the law. Mosser, currently serving her second term as Kane County State's Attorney, brings extensive experience prosecuting criminal cases while creating innovative programs to protect vulnerable community members and support at-risk individuals through diversion and deferred prosecution programs.

"I am honored to be elected by my fellow State's Attorneys and grateful for the trust they have placed in me," Mosser said. "As the top law enforcement officials in our respective counties, our responsibility as prosecutors is to ensure the safety of the people of Illinois. I am committed to working closely with my colleagues statewide to make sure our criminal justice system remains effective and fair."

As president, Mosser will guide the ISAA's initiatives, facilitate communication among all 102 offices, and ensure that the issues affecting prosecutors are addressed collectively. The organization has also been involved with legislation in Springfield, shaping laws related to public safety and informing lawmakers about the impact of policy proposals being considered.

"The challenges facing prosecutors today are significant, including the continued implementing the SAFE-T Act and cashless bail," Mosser continued. "Our profession continues to evolve as we adapt to new technology that changes what crime and crime prevention looks like. We also must adapt to new research that guides how we balance the prosecution of dangerous offenders with diversion and rehabilitation for those who deserve a second chance. I look forward to further serving the people of Illinois through this new role."

Mosser launched the Kane County Child Exploitation Unit (2022, expanded in 2023) to combat child exploitation and child pornography, and the Human Trafficking Unit (2025) to combat sex and labor trafficking.

Mosser has also played a key role in legislative improvements, including amendments to the SAFE-T Act. Additionally, she recently helped update Illinois domestic violence laws to reduce juvenile arrests while connecting families with resources to address underlying issues.
