No experience necessary. You will be welcomed and mentored by a team of experienced public defenders who will help you hone your skills. KCPDO is an eclectic group that thrives on collaboration. We are a creative group both in and out of the courtroom and know how to balance work and life.

We're the last line of defense. If Goliath's on your back, we're the guys with the slingshots. If you have what it takes to stand with the marginalized members of our community, join us and send your cover letter, resume, and references to Britt Hawkins, Misdemeanor Chief of the Kane County Public Defender's Office. Bhawkins@kanepublicdefender.org. We won't ghost you.
